- In Fort Collins, Timnath, and Windsor, prices are higher and some homes are taking longer to sell, which opens the door for buyers to negotiate and plan ahead with confidence.

FOR REALTORS

What This Means for Your Clients

- Fort Collins sits at a $509,849 median with homes moving in about 47 days. It is the fastest market of the three, so being ready matters.
- Timnath has a median of $679,798 and homes sit about 89 days. More time on market means more room to work with sellers on price or closing costs.
- Windsor sits at $558,834 with homes averaging 77 days on market. The average median across all three cities is about $582,827, putting a 5% down payment around $29,141.
- If your Realtor has a client who got pre-approved 60 or more days ago, send them back for a rate check. Rates shift and a new approval could change what they can afford.

LOAN SPOTLIGHT

FHA Loans: A Real Path for First Time Buyers

- FHA loans let you put as little as 3.5% down. In a market like Fort Collins or Windsor, that can make a real difference in how fast you can get into a home.
- Your credit does not have to be perfect. FHA is built for real buyers who are working hard and just need a fair shot.
- FHA loans are backed by the government, which often makes them easier to qualify for than a conventional loan, especially for first time buyers.
- If someone you know thinks buying is out of reach in Northern Colorado, an FHA loan might change that conversation. Have them call or text and we will walk through the numbers together.

Ready to make a move?

No pressure. Just an honest conversation about where you are and where you want to go.
